

EASTER.

BY GEO. L. REED.

It has been a custom among men, from the earliest times of which we have any account, to observe anniversary days in honor of great events. Among the children of Israel these days were very common, and they were strictly observed, as a matter of duty, rather than pleasure. While they celebrated the Passover, and many other days kept in remembrance of noted events in their history, they looked forward to the events we now celebrate. For century after century they looked for the first great act in the plan of Salvation, which we celebrate at Christmas time.

On Easter, we celebrate the resurrection of the Savior, the third act in the great plan of Salvation. And now, when we look back over the intervening centuries to Bethlehem, where the Savior was born; to Calvary, where he was crucified; to the garden, where he arose; and to the mount, from which he ascended, we fail to form an opinion as to which of the four great acts, necessary to complete the scheme of man's redemption, was the greatest. It would have been incomplete if any one of them had been omitted or left out.

When his humble birth, in the village of Bethlehem, received the royal recognition from heaven, and the glad-tidings of great joy were proclaimed, "Unto you, this day, is born a Prince and Savior," Heaven smiled on man: the angels, who know no sadness nor sorrow, rejoiced in our behalf; man's hope, so long deferred, revived, and joy filled the hearts of those who had watched and waited so long for the fulfillment of the most precious promise God ever gave to man. But when the wickedness of man appeared to triumph, and the Babe of Bethlehem was nailed to the Cross, and willingly surrendered his life, while the darkest frown of heaven overshadowed all the land, hope fled away; the vast throng, who had witnessed his crucifixion, groped in darkness and trembled from fear as they sought the seclusion of their homes. The timid disciples, dispirited and disheartened, because they did not fully comprehend the mission of their Master, hid themselves from the public gaze in their humble rooms in the suburbs of the great city. But when the two Marys entered the garden, at the dawn of the third day, ere yet the sun had risen above the eastern hills, while the populace, recently in such a turmoil, was slumbering as if in expectation of some more startling announcement, while the flowers around the tomb were offering their morning incense of sweet perfume, when the angels in the brightest livery of heaven, made the most startling announcement, "He is not here," hope came again and filled the hearts of those humble women, while joy lighted up their faces, as they returned on the

to tell the glad news to their comrades. That was a day of joy following a season of sadness. And now, Easter should bring joy and rejoicing to everybody, and especially to all christian people.

When the two Marys came to the sepulcher that morning, their hands were filled with spices which they had prepared to anoint the body of the Savior, whom they looked upon as dead, and their hearts were filled with sadness, because they did not comprehend what he had told them—that he would rise again on the third day. They feared, also, that they could not find anyone to roll away the great stone from the door of the sepulcher. Thus they came in sadness, bringing the best offering they could. Their first greeting was from the flowers, whose sweet perfume met them at the garden gate. Then the angel, before whom the keepers became as dead men, gently said: "He is not here. He is risen, as he told his disciples." And when Jesus, himself, met them and said, "All hail," their joy was complete.

All christian people should be happy every day, and especially on Eastern morn. And we know of no more beautiful and appropriate introduction to this great anniversary than that practiced by the Moravian people, who always assemble in their places of worship before the dawn on Easter morning. Here they engage in the beautiful litany prepared especially for that occasion. The dimly lighted room, the soft strains of minor music, scarcely audible at first, are faithful representatives of the condition of the little band of timid disciples in Jerusalem "on the morning of the third day." Then, just as the sun sends up his vanguard of rosy light, all repair to the "burying ground," the garden of flowers, which is always found in close proximity to every Moravian church. And here, at the dawning of the day, the little procession marches up and down the aisles that separate the rows of sleepers, who are peacefully resting until the resurrection morning shall dawn, and they shall arise as Christ arose. Here songs of triumph are sung, and the notes of praise are echoed over hill and vale, and go up as praise to heaven, mingled with the earliest song of the wild bird, and freighted with the sweet perfume of the earliest wild flower. There is no sadness among these humble christians on Easter Sunday. To them the stone has been rolled away, the Savior has risen indeed.

Let us, then, in this sunny climate, in this favored part of the world, where there are no guards nor keepers at the sepulcher, let us rejoice and be glad on the approaching Easter. Let us rejoice that the Savior has risen from the dead, and that we are not only permitted to celebrate the great event, but that in due time we may have part in the first resurrection, if we but love him as the timid disciples did, and bring to him the best offering we can—ourselves.

KANSAS STATE NEWS.

Important to Kansans.

A decision has just been rendered in the United States court of claims that is of great importance to a large number of Kansas people who have claims against the government for Indian depredations. Many of these claims have been pending for fifteen or twenty years, but under the decision obtained will now be quickly disposed of. The question was raised by the attorney-general as to the insufficiency of service in Indian depredation claims and the decision is in favor of the claimants, the court holding that the Indians charged with the depredations were not entitled to any notice of the pendency of the claim, although joined as co-defendants with the United States, other than that provided by the act of congress under which the suits were brought, that is by serving a copy of the petition on the attorney-general of the United States. Under this decision large numbers of these claims, at least those that have been examined and allowed by the Indian bureau and approved by the secretary of the interior, and known as preferred claims, will be disposed of during April. This decision concerns Kansas more than any other state. Claims from the state amounting to more than $500,000 are now pending. The bulk of them are for losses sustained by citizens of Kansas by reason of the invasion of Indians during the year 1878.

The Kansas Building.

The plans for the Kansas building to be erected on the world's fair grounds at Chicago have been officially approved, and the board of managers have invited Kansas contractors to submit sealed proposals for the construction of the building. The board of managers will meet at Topeka on April 28 for the purpose of awarding the contract. In order that the awarding of the contract may not be impeded the secretary asks each county association to remit promptly to Samuel T. Howe, Topeka, a sum of money which, when added to the amount already paid in, will make fifty per cent. of their apportionment. If, in any county, fifty per cent. of the allotted sum has not been collected, it is desired that the amount that is collected be paid in.

Railroad Casualties.

Report of railroad accidents during the year, made to the board of railroad commissioners, showed that 275 employees were killed and 1,104 injured. Passengers killed, 30; injured, 173. Others killed, 322; injured, 322. Making a grand total of 645 killed and 1,322 injured. In coupling and uncoupling cars, 48 were killed and 325 were injured. By falling from trains, 60 employees were killed and 130 injured. By overhead obstructions, 130 were killed and 16 injured. In regard to accidents to persons not in the employ of the roads, the reports showed that 46 were killed and 50 injured at highway crossings.

Kansas Railroads.

The ninth annual report of the state board of railroad commissioners says that all the principal lines of railroad in the state have been maintained in excellent condition, both in respect to coalbed, equipment, and service. The branch lines generally are in as good condition as their business will justify, and with a return of good seasons will no doubt be greatly improved. Less than two miles of road have been constructed in the state during the past year.

Answer Filed.

The Union Pacific railroad has filed an answer in the district court of Atchison county to the suit of the Symms Grocery Co. vs. the Kansas railroad commissioners, growing out of the order of the board of March 5 affecting fifth-class rates. The answer is similar to that filed by the Rock Island a few days ago, and admits that compliance with the order of the commissioners would constitute an unreasonable discrimination against the complainant.
